Questions To Consider

Throughout this entire Union organizing drive, Delta management has engaged in rhetoric and behavior that has opened the eyes and ears of a great number of employees. Question and consider what their true motivation really is. Here are a few examples:

Delta wants you to believe we are one united work force and a single carrier. Most, if not all, break rooms throughout the system for ramp and ticket counter are still separate. In locations where Union and non-Union employees are working together, Delta management prohibits discussion about the Union on lunch and break times. Not only is this a violation of the law, it is a tactic, we believe, to prevent you from learning the benefit of belonging to the IAM. There are reports, also, of Delta supervisors confiscating Union literature that employees are reading during lunch or break times. Why would a Company that has stated verbally and in print they encourage you to educate yourself on the Union, prohibit you from doing so? This blatant contradiction has to at least raise an eyebrow in the most jaded of us.

Not only does Delta management discourage you from reading or discussing anything Union-related, they openly discourage you from even voting in a Union representation election. Why should they care what you do if it's your choice? We believe the answer is, "control."

A Union contract gives you a say regarding seniority, work rules, wages and benefits that otherwise would be solely at management's discretion. Management involvement in this organizing campaign isn't about your best interest, it's about theirs! Take control of your future. Sign an A-card today.

When the time comes, Vote Union ... Vote IAM!
